

Newsweek Honor School

For the third consecutive year, Centennial High School has been recognized by Newsweek Magazine as one of “America’s Best High Schools”. Each year, Newsweek picks the best high schools in the country based on the level of challenge the schools present to their students through advanced placement college-level classes (PAP and AP classes) and tests (AP exams).

Just over 1,600 schools - only 6 % of all the public high schools in the nation - made Newsweeks’ list for 2010.

Centennial proudly accepts this honor which recognizes the hard work and successful efforts put forth by our students and teachers.

Congratulations Titans!
